

We offer free legal help in many areas, including

- welfare,
- SNAP (food stamps),
- divorce,
- child support,
- domestic violence,
- bankruptcy,

- special education,
- nursing home care,
- health insurance,
- eviction,
- foreclosure,
- and more.

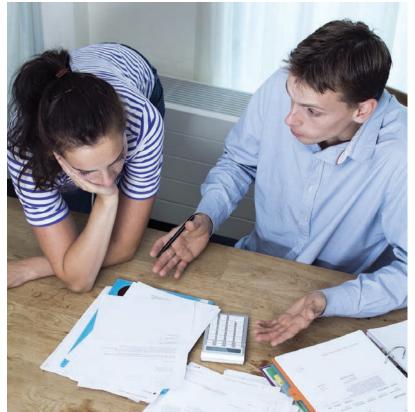

HOUSING

LEGAL SERVICES

SELF-HELP SERIES

Foreclosure: Your Rights and Options

July 2023

See the reverse side for more about legal services.

If you're 60 or over, call your local legal aid office:

Eastern CT	800-413-7796	Western CT	800-413-7797
Hartford Area	860-541-5000	Bridgeport Area	800-809-4434
Stamford Area	800-541-8909	New Haven Area	203-946-4811

If you're under 60, call SLS for help:

Statewide Legal Services of Connecticut, Inc. Statewide Legal Services 1-800-453-3320 860-344-0380

Search our website for help:

www.ctlawhelp.org

Foreclosure: Your Rights and Options

Where to get help
The foreclosure process 4
Mediation6
Going to court
What happens after foreclosure 8
Other ways to avoid foreclosure 10

If you're under 60, call us for help: Statewide Legal Services of connecticut inc. Statewide Legal Services 1-800-453-3320 or 860-344-0380 Search our website for help: www.ctlawhelp.org

If you're over 60, call your local legal aid office.

Connecticut Legal Services

www.ctlegal.org

Bridgeport 1000 Lafayette Blvd 203-336-3851 Suite 950

 New Britain

 16 Main Street
 860-225-8678

New London 125 Eugene O'Neill Dr. Suite 120 860-447-0323

Stamford 1177 Summer Street 203-348-9216

Waterbury

85 Central Avenue 203-756-8074

860-456-1761

Willimantic 1125 Main Street 999 Asylum Avenue Hartford, CT 06105 860-541-5000

www.ghla.org

New Haven Legal Assistance Association

Greater Hartford Legal Aid

www.nhlegal.org

205 Orange Street New Haven, CT 06510 203-946-4811

Consumer Law Project for Elders

Free legal assistance to people 60 and over throughout Connecticut who have money/debt problems. 1-800-296-1467

This booklet was produced by Connecticut Legal Services, Greater Hartford Legal Aid, New Haven Legal Assistance Association, and Statewide Legal Services.

The information in this booklet is based on laws in Connecticut as of 7/2023. We hope that the information is helpful. It is not intended as legal advice. For advice on your situation, call Statewide Legal Services or contact a lawyer.

© July 2023

Other ways to avoid foreclosure

- If you have a mortgage insured by the VA, HUD, USDA/RHS, or FHA, or backed by Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac, you may have other rights. Talk to a lawyer to learn more.
- You can sell your property before the Law Day or Sale Date. Selling the property may save you court and auction costs. Make sure you'll get enough from the sale to cover the total debt. If you can't find a buyer willing to pay a high enough price, you can ask the lender if it will accept less for your debt. This is called a short sale.
- If you don't have very much equity and you can't refinance or sell your property, you can ask the plaintiff to take your property and cancel the foreclosure and/or deficiency judgment. This is called a deed in lieu of foreclosure. By choosing this option, you will not have a foreclosure in your credit history, but you may have to pay taxes. Talk to a lawyer for more information.
- You can try to pay off the debt, interest, court costs, and other fees on or before the Law Day or Sale Date. The plaintiff will then file a Satisfaction of Judgment with the court clerk. You should also file a certified copy of that Satisfaction with the town clerk where the property is located.
- You can ask the judge to extend the Law Day or Sale Date if you need time to sell the property or pay off your debt. This may increase the amount you owe. Ask the court clerk for help applying for an extension before the Law Day or Sale Date. At the hearing, tell the judge how and when you plan to pay off your debt.
- Filing bankruptcy may prevent foreclosure. Talk to a lawyer to see if this is a good option for you.

This booklet will tell you what to do if you are behind on your mortgage and facing foreclosure.

If you're behind on your mortgage, don't ignore the problem. Talk to your lender as soon as you start having trouble. You may be able to avoid foreclosure by working out a payment plan or a loan modification.

Visit the Connecticut Fair Housing Center website at www.ctfairhousing.org for help and more detailed information.

Where to get help

Here are some resources and programs that can help you keep your home:

Get foreclosure prevention advice.

Connecticut Fair Housing Center offers free virtual appointments to any homeowner facing foreclosure. Go to https://ctfairhousing.org/ what-we-do/foreclosure-advice to schedule a virtual appointment.

Talk to a lawyer. Volunteer attorneys give advice and answer questions at some courthouses. You can get the schedule from the Judicial Branch website at www.jud.ct.gov/ volunteer_atty_prgm.htm or by calling 860-263-2734.

Talk to a housing counselor. To find a free counselor approved by HUD (U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development), call 2-1-1 or go to www.consumerfinance.gov/ find-a-housing-counselor.

Call the State of Connecticut Department of Banking foreclosure hotline at 1-877-472-8313. They can answer questions and send you information.

Beware of foreclosure

Be careful of groups that say they can save your home from foreclosure.

Only use counselors

that are approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

to a HUD-approved

housing counselor.

Call 2-1-1 for a referral

rescue scams.

Contact the Connecticut Housing Finance Authority

(CHFA). CHFA provides counseling for people facing foreclosure. Call 1-877-571-2432 or 860-571-3500 or visit their website at www.chfa.org.

Talk to MyHomeCT at 1-877-894-4111 or go to https://www. chfa.org/myhomect/. MyHomeCT is a pandemic relief grant program that offers up to $50,000 to homeowners who are behind on mortgage payments or worried about falling behind in the future and who have had a pandemic-related hardship. If you think you might be eligible, apply immediately or talk to a housing counselor for assistance.

Talk to someone at the Connecticut Office of the Attorney General if you think your lender misled you or tricked you into a mortgage you can't afford. They may be able to help. Call 860-808-5318 to learn more.

The foreclosure process

You probably don't need to hire a lawyer. Most people in foreclosure handle their cases without one.

Foreclosure starts when a marshal serves you these papers:

- Summons,
- Complaint, and
- Mediation Certificate.

Fill out and file court forms

Most people in foreclosure handle their cases without a lawyer.

The marshal will come with movers on the date and time on the notice. If you haven't moved your things out, the movers will put your things in storage. Call your town and ask where your belongings are being stored. You will have 15 days to claim your belongings from storage. After 15 days, the town can auction them off. The town may charge you a storage fee.

Important! If you are 18 or older and you are not the spouse of the borrower, you have to move out only if your name is listed in the foreclosure or eviction papers.

You might owe money after foreclosure

How much money you will owe will depend on the type of foreclosure you are facing:

Foreclosure by Sale: If you owe more than the property sold for, the lender may ask the court to enter a deficiency judgment against you. A deficiency judgment is a court record that says you owe money to the bank or to the lender.

Strict Foreclosure: If you owe more than the property is worth, the plaintiff (bank or lender) has 30 days after the Law Day to ask the court to enter a deficiency judgment against you. A deficiency judgment is a court record that says you owe money to the bank or lender.

For either type of foreclosure, there will be a hearing where you can tell the judge why your property is worth more than the plaintiff says. You can hire your own appraiser, ask the plaintiff's appraiser questions to show that the value is wrong, or testify about the value yourself.

Strict Foreclosure	Foreclosure by Sale
Things to remember:	Things to remember:
 Another defendant in your case, such as a spouse who also owns the home, can pay the debt by the Law Day. If no one pays the debt, the plaintiff will own the property. The plaintiff is the party that brought the case (usually the bank or lender). You will not get any of the equity in your property. 	 Only ask for a foreclosure by sale if you have a lot of equity in your property. You must file a Motion for Foreclosure by Sale with the court. Ask the clerk for help. There will be a court hearing on your Motion. The judge will want to know that the property is worth more than your total debt. You may want to get someone to tell you the value you of (or appraise) your home. A judge will give more weight to an appraisal than to your opinion of the home's value.

If you don't move out after foreclosure

If you don't move out after the Law Day or Sale Date of the property, the new owner will probably start an ejectment or eviction against you and have a marshal move your things out. An ejectment takes less time than an eviction, and it will be part of the foreclosure case. An eviction is similar, but it requires a new court case in housing court. The marshal will give you a notice with the time and date that they are coming to move your things.

You must give your forms to the court and to everyone in your case within 15 days of the Return Date. You can find the Return Date in the upper right-hand corner of the Summons form. You don't have to go to court on the Return Date.

If you don't file your forms on time, you may not be able to fight the foreclosure or participate in mediation. If you miss any deadlines, contact the court clerk right away. If you don't live in Connecticut, talk to a lawyer who practices in Connecticut before you file any forms.

Appearance (JD-CL-12)

Everyone facing foreclosure must file an Appearance. The Appearance form tells the court your name, address, and that you are representing yourself in the foreclosure. You must file this form with the court within 15 days of the Return Date. Once you give the court your Appearance, you will get notice of everything that happens in your case. Get the form from the court clerk or online at https://www.jud.ct.gov/webforms/forms/cl012.pdf

Mediation Certificate (JD-CV-108)

Mediation is a free program that can help you work out an agreement with your lender. You must go to mediation if you live in and own a home that houses up to four families. You can get the Mediation Certificate attached to the foreclosure papers, from the court clerk, or online at https://www.jud. ct.gov/webforms/forms/CV108.pdf.

Answer (JD-CV-106)

Most people in foreclosure don't have to file an Answer. You should only file one if you have a defense to the foreclosure. A defense means you think there is a good reason why your house should not be in foreclosure (for example, the mortgage company didn't credit your account with payments that you made, or it didn't follow an agreement it made with you). Try to talk to a lawyer before you file an Answer.

Read everything in the Complaint very carefully before you fill out the Answer form. You will need to check Agree, Disagree, or Do Not Know for each paragraph in the Complaint. If you don't understand a paragraph, check Do Not Know. Use the Special Defenses section to explain why the court should let you keep your home.

Get an Answer form from the court clerk or online at https://www.jud.ct.gov/webforms/forms/CV106.pdf.

Mediation

If you are in foreclosure because you are behind on your mortgage, you will have to meet with a mediator. After you file the mediation certificate, mediation is automatically scheduled if your case qualifies for it, and it can take up to 7 months (or longer if you ask for an extension).Read Connecticut Fair Housing Center's Guide for Homeowners before you attend.

Tips and information about mediation

- Don't agree to move out if you want to keep your home.
- The mediator can't make the lender agree to something, but they may help the lender to be more flexible.
- Keep all appointments and complete all paperwork that the mediator asks of you. If you don't, the foreclosure may move forward faster.
- The lender's representatives may be at some mediation appointments.
- If you can't work out an agreement in mediation, you can ask to see the judge after mediation is finished.
- If the lender doesn't do what the mediator asks, talk to a lawyer to find out your options.

Go to every court date

If the judge orders foreclosure of your property, you can ask for extra time

- to sell or refinance the house,
- to let your kids finish the school year, or
- to move (if someone in your family is disabled).

The judge will order either strict foreclosure or foreclosure by sale, depending on the status of other lienholders, the value of the property, and whether you ask for a sale.

Which type of foreclosure applies to my situation?

Strict Foreclosure	Foreclosure by Sale
The judge will set a date	The judge will set a Sale Date, called a Law Day , which is	which is the date that your
the last date you have to get	house is to be sold at auction.
your home back. To do that,	You can pay what you owe you must pay what you owe	(usually the amount of the (usually the amount of the	debt plus court costs and debt plus court costs and	attorney's fees), before the attorney's fees). You can try to	Sale Date. You can try to sell sell the property or get a loan	the property or get a loan to
to pay what you owe. If you	pay off your debt.
don't do this by the Law Day,	On the cale data wave
the bank will own your home	On the sale date, your
the next day.	property will be auctioned to
There may be more than one	the highest bidder. The money
There may be more than one	will first go to auction and
Law Day, but the one that	court costs and to pay the matters for you is the first	plaintiff (usually the bank or Law Day.	lender). If there is any money left over, it goes to you.